Looking at the News with Col. Hugh Clark

THERE is a limit beyond which thralldom may not be carried. There is a point where rebellion sets in. Baseball magnates found this out in the world series. (It is called the world series because it takes place in the United States). They thought the public so baseball crazy that they could do anything and get away with it, and so they decided to sell no single tickets. It was three or none. It did not work. The gate fell off and they withdrew the restriction next day. All hail the depression! It is working for emancipation.

It may have been his desire to be loose that made Gandhi fast.

The two million dollar failure of Insull companies, following the failure of the Krueger-Toll companies, has given the world another set-back. When the wreckage is cleared away, there ought to be a revival of confidence unless there are other large corporations threatening to topple over the same way. Small businesses have weathered the gale fairly well, because they were managed by individuals who had a personal interest in seeing that they succeeded, whereas large businesses, managed by boards of directors, have not fared so well.

Physiologists disagree as to whether a man's character is indicated in his countenance. With some, the face is accepted as a letter of credit. With some, well you naturally think the Lord never placed it there except as a warning to others not to trust the bearer. And yet—and yet—we have been fooled so often by both that we incline to agree with the physiologists in disagreeing. There's a man with a fine, honest, open countenance. You take to him at once. Next thing you know he has sold you mining stocks that are N.G. Here's a man with a face you think repulsive. Instinctively you don't like him and won't trust him. Chance throws you together, you get acquainted and find him a pretty decent intelligent, generous fellow. There's a man with a chin that betokens weakness and you find him married to a masculine woman whom he bosses. Here's a man who registers caution amounting to timidity and the next thing you hear of him he is judging a baby show. These are, however, exceptions to the rule, that the first impression is right.

Mayor Cermak came back from a tour of Europe indignant at the reputation which Chicago has abroad and determined to restore its good name and fame before the world's fair comes off there next year. He need not blame outsiders for that ill-repute. It started in Chicago where it's cause lay. It was advertised in his own campaign for mayor, he being the chief offender, if offence it was. The city has improved since then, but dispatches still come from

Re Chickens, Men and Suppers--and Results

The chicken pie supper season has rolled around on us again. The hatchet rises and falls—one more chip from the block—one more satisfied diner and another chicken pie supper goes down on record.

The Ladies Guild of the Anglican Church recently held a supper in the basement of the church. They were prepared for 150 people and over 200 were in attendance. They report a great success.

Here again, the Ladies Circle of Church of Christ held a chicken and turkey supper and they vied for honors with the Ladies Guild in success.

We have one to look forward to. The Ladies' Aid of the United Church are planning their supper on Saturday, November 5.

What chance has a mere man against cooking such as this? We could exercise, but—

After cards, supper was served. A presentation was made by the lodge through Wor. Bro. Denbigh to Const. Bull of an electric clock. All the speakers emphasized the esteem with which Const. Bull was held and the good fellowship in which he was considered by his many friends. From every speaker came heartfelt tribute to the man who had so thoroughly become friend to them all. It was with universal regret that the news of Const. Bull's transfer was received.

Among the speakers were Wor. Bro. Dawson, Wor. Bro. Butchart, Wor. Bro. Willard, Rt. Wor. Bro. Carson, Wor. Bro. Collier, Rev. Bro. Brunton, Rev. V. Smith, Wor. Bro. Moffatt of Champion, Wor. Bro. Picken, Wor. Bro. P. McAskile, Wor. Bro. Knox and others.

Three picked voices, Wor. Bro. Collier, R. Wor. Bro. Simington, Wor. Bro. Denbigh gave a personal version of the song "It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo." with Johnnie Bull as the victim. The crowd heartily applauded this parody.

As an expression of appreciation of the valued citizenship of Const. and Mrs. Bull, the evening left nothing to be desired.

STILL NEED THINGS

On every hand the statement is made that the world has produced far beyond the capacity to consume. In rebuttal there is the inevitable introduction of starving China, and other under-privileged countries.

But there also appears to be good argument in the statistics dealing with labor-saving facilities in the rural homes of Alberta. It is quite unnecessary to go outside of Canada to realize that this country has a long way to go yet, before all its people are provided with very ordinary comforts. The saturation point is far away, and all that is lacking is that reasonable wage for the masses which would bring a better buying power.

As an instance, a great proportion of the rural households of Alberta are still struggling along with primitive equipment. Doubtless many urban homes are similarly deficient in the commonplace facilities. These cannot be classed as luxuries, but are the reasonable right of everyone, available at no great cost and adding to general health, happiness and enjoyment of life.

Only one home in every forty-six in rural Alberta, has water piped to the kitchen. This surely cannot bear the stigma of luxury. Water connection in the busy kitchen is a necessity on every farm. Only one farm in forty-one has any power machinery to ease the burdens of washing, ironing, cleaning, etc. There is a market capable of indefinite absorption, if only there was an adequate farm revenue.

Strangely enough, though so many farms are without these more necessary facilities, the radio has found a place in one rural home out of six.

One might go on indefinitely, citing the various facilities which many homes lack, the unending work that might be done in improving roads and so on.

Alberta has spoken largely of its "standards of living." These standards in the mass, could be much higher without ever reaching any luxury stage.

At the present time, the so-called "standards," are slipping badly. The majority of homes under the enforced economy of the past three years, have made few or no replacements. There is a tremendous potential market for all manner of goods. The things that people still need are sufficient to employ a multitude in the making. But until the revenue from farm products rises, there will continue to be under-consumption. This is the problem, not only in starving China, but right here in Canada.

VALUES THAT COUNT

The Cardston News tells the story of a community supper out in the country, and in the telling, provides a thought with which we all agree but sometimes forget:

"Saturday evening, the ladies of Spring Coulee put on a supper and entertainment for the benefit of a Christmas program. We have heard of hard times, that products of the soil are of no value, but when the ladies took their bountiful supply of vegetables, fruits and poultry products, and using their culinary art upon them, made out of them a repast to which kings and queens would be delighted to partake, it just shows that the same intrinsic value of these products remain as ever they possessed.

"It being a stormy night, the program talent that was expected from outside points never arrived, so that the entertainment also was strictly home talent, and talent that any village in the country would be proud to possess. Each number was so well rendered, and the applause so insistent, that often a second and third encore was necessary. An appreciative audience always brings out the best there is and helps to develop talent, wit and beauty in the actors.

"Every community has talent that if properly developed would enrich the home life of that community. The long winter ahead, and the long winter nights approaching, if used to advantage, will give opportunity for development of music, song, and story among the people, which hard times cannot stop."

Throughout every district in the West, this little incident has a counterpart. The good things of the earth, are here in greater profusion and at less cost than ever before. Money restriction has stimulated an inventiveness in the way of social activities in every community. Amateur talent, that lay unappreciated in good times, is being developed and encouraged. And best of all, with more simple living, a new neighborliness is springing up. There are many real values which have no connection with money or hard times.

THEY SHALL NOT BE

There is something very compelling in the edict issued to transients on September 30th "Cease to be." If transients could be eliminated by a wave of the wand, it would greatly simplify life for the dominion, the provinces and the cities. But unfortunately, the transient still exists—for a time. Whether he will continue to exist is apparently left to the charity of individuals.

Having been forbidden to ride the freights to his home in another province, and having been warned to keep away from the cities, the transient will evidently have to bed down in some ditch and live off the land.

It is certain that many now in the harvest fields of Alberta do not belong to the province. They are feverishly and against much lost-time, trying to accumulate a pitifully small stake to keep them independent for a few weeks. Any attempt to enforce the Sept. 30th orders, would show an utter lack of sympathy with their efforts, and also a lack of sympathy with the pressing needs of Western harvest fields.

When Premier Bennett was urged to solve the transient problem as it affected provinces, he was also urged to treat it as a Federal responsibility. His September 30 edict was only a negative solution. It penalizes the men who actually are trying to take advantage of a seasonal employment.

and custom laid down for them to no matter what end. The law is a human device representative of human weakness, a well-meant attempt to apply to the individual certain general laws derived from observation of mankind in masses. There is a higher law of equity, and its application for the most part rests in the hands of the judges, is dependent upon their humanity, their broad general experience of men and things, their wisdom and kindness.

The great figures of the English bench are the judges who spoke out their thoughts, who hated injustice and loved righteousness, whose judicial vision was not obscured by technicalities and precedents. The Canadian bench has been, is fortunate in possessing such figures: men like Chief Justice Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice Latchford, big enough and brave enough to blaze a path of justice through the forest of laws, Judge Stubbs, if we mistake not, belongs to this tradition.

THANKFULNESS

Although this would have been a happier and more carefree Thanksgiving season in this district, if the crop had all been gathered home, yet no one can deny that there is, even with the uncompleted harvest, much to be thankful for.

All around us lies abundance of food. On the farms there are stores of grain and vegetables. Within the confines of each farm unit, lies the guarantee of food for the winter.

It is true that continuing wheat prices, give hope of little revenue on the farms and this naturally, reacts not only on the comfort of the rural district, but on the business of the towns. The town dweller is greatly dependent for his welfare on the revenue from the farms, and his needs must be reduced to match his income. Even so, he has cause for gratitude.

There are relatively few in the town who are in desperate straits, and the instinctive kindness of man will ensure for these few, sufficient for their daily needs.

It is not a carefree Thanksgiving, but neither need it be tragic. The worries that exist, are man-made worries, and there is a gathering determination to remedy these worries, to recognize the difficulties of the masses, and while alleviating its temporarily, to lay the foundation for a more solid future.

There is the promise from Ottawa that every needy person in the Dominion will be fed and warmly clothed and housed during the winter. With pressure bearing from every direction, the governments will approach the matter of economic administration more earnestly than they have done hitherto.

And one great cause of thanksgiving, is the tendency of human beings to a greater kindness toward each other.

There is a growing movement to a larger brotherhood, a sympathy with the unfortunate, and a readiness to assume part of each other's burdens. Many natures have grown richer and mellowed through the trials of depression. If there has been growth in character, that is true cause for thanksgiving.

READING

Everyone's shelf will contain different books, and the books which give one joy as a boy may not delight a man, but the pleasure of reading continues. If we live in a vale of tears, it behooves us to make the best of it. The habit of reading, firmly established, enables one to endure if need be, misfortune and disgrace. I see today greater anxiety written in the faces of my millionaire friends than I do on the faces of the poor men who resort day after day to our public libraries, there to solace themselves with a book. In an established love of reading there is a policy of insurance guaranteeing certain happiness till death. I would assist, as far as I can, in the issuing of such an insurance policy.—Atlantic Monthly.

PAYING YOUR TAXES IT MUST BE DONE

Despite Advice of Miss Agnes McPhail, Folks Cannot Lie Back and Refuse to Pay.

The following from the Durham Chronicle is an editorial comment on Miss Agnes McPhail's advice given to farmers at a recent Kincardine meeting:

"A speaker at Kincardine advises the farmers to say that would not pay their taxes until they 'earn them out of the land.' We wondered when we read it how they have been paying them all along, if they did not come out of the land. The writer pays taxes, too. Instead of a farm, we have a printing office. It would be quite in order to tell us to refrain from paying our taxes until we could 'earn them out of the printing office.' Frankly, if we can't raise the money here, we do not know where we shall get it. The earning power of the office is the only asset we have. The case of a good many farmers is similar. Their assets are their farms."

"So far as the taxes on the Chronicle property is concerned, if they do not come out of the office somebody is going to be out of luck. We have no stocks or bonds, or any loose fortunes lying around."

"To date there is only one mystery about our taxes. The place where the money is to come from is not nearly so hard to determine as 'the time when it will appear.'"

Miss McPhail is quoted as having said in her speech: "The farmer is 47 per cent. of Canada's population. His produce prices have dropped 60 per cent. and what he must purchase only 14 per cent. His fixed overhead is in terms of dollars and the only way he can get money is to produce more for an already overproduced market. This reduces prices instead of increasing them. The only way out of this vicious circle, declared Miss McPhail is for each and every farmer to refuse to pay taxes until he can earn them from the land. Continuance of present methods will result in the farmer giving away all his accumulated capital."

Miss McPhail has been criticized by many non-partisan papers for her remarks, which are regarded as neither wise nor sound.

One comment is: "Miss Agnes MacPhail is reported as advising the farmers not to pay their taxes. Cessation of tax paying would mean the closing of schools, stopping all work on roads, and the withdrawal of all services now carried on by the municipality. Difficult though the payment of taxes undoubtedly is, the farmers are not likely to follow Miss MacPhail's advice and sacrifice their schools and other valuable services. They will, however, be wise to continue to insist that public expenditures—municipal, provincial and federal—be cut wherever practicable and the burdens of taxation eased."

Commenting on the fact that Jerome Platt of Brant won the Lethbridge Herald road race, the Cardston News says "this boy Platt is a real distance runner, and with a little more experience should make a great name for himself." z

WORLD WHEAT AND EUROPEAN VIEW

Better Turn Economically, Would Have Strong Effect on European Buying Policy

The production of wheat in 34 countries now reported is 3,119,142,000 bushels, or 100.6 per cent. of last year's production in these same countries.

Import markets of Continental Europe were firmer in most countries week ended Sept. 7th. In Belgium trading was less active, but there was sustained demand for Canadian wheat.

In reviewing the general Continental wheat markets for the month of August, U.S.A. Attache Steere at Berlin reports they were dominated by the prospects of large domestic crops throughout the western half of Europe, and showed little re-action to developments in Overseas markets. The demand for foreign wheats during August was largely of a hand-to-mouth character. Favorable European crop prospects, currency difficulties and measures to protect home agriculture or to restrict trade generally have been the principal factors for keeping European demand for foreign wheat within narrow limits. The Attache also points out, however, that continued lack of confidence is not without influence in the attitude of the European trade towards future commitments. Notwithstanding unfavorable reports from Russia and deterioration in the outlook for the North American spring crop, attention continues to be focused upon the relatively large stocks of all crop wheat still available in North America. The tendency to keep stocks as small as possible still persists.

A marked turn for the better in the economic situation, especially if accompanied by a definite upward movement in wheat prices, might easily have a pronounced effect in European interests in wheat, and upon European policies with respect to the numerous restrictive measures now curtailing takings of wheat, with the result that Europe might find it profitable to replenish her stocks of wheat now at low levels.—Searle Grain Market.

CANADIAN TOBACCO GOES OVER BIGGER

Market Expanding Steadily, Especially in British Isles

The popularity of Canadian tobacco in the United Kingdom is steadily increasing, according to a statement from the Department of Trade and Commerce. During the eight months ending with August, 1932, a total of 8,950,568 pounds of Canadian tobacco valued at $2,545,380 was exported to Great Britain as compared with a total of 4,917,128 pounds valued at $1,429,892 for the corresponding period of 1931. The increase, both in quantity and value, is thus approximately 100 per cent. The figures, it may be stated, deal only with unmanufactured tobacco.

Bright flue cured appears to be the most popular variety for the British market, Burley coming second.—Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The retirement of Messrs. Samuel Snowden and Sinclair from the national government of the United Kingdom was to be expected. A government could not remain intact for long that had to resort to the expedient of allowing individual members of the cabinet to speak and vote against a government measure. That departure from established practice only postponed the disruption and showed it to be inevitable.

A will, instead of being read after the funerals, should be read before. Like that of Lord Salisbury, it may contain instructions with respect to funeral economies. Mothers Must Sacrifice

IN times like these, mothers have to sacrifice in order to give their children the advantages of a normal youth. Good, nourishing food is most essential. Since bread is Nature's best food, smart mothers know it is foolish to economize on flour when even the best is inexpensive. Prairie mothers have considered Robin Hood flour the Standard of Excellence for more than a generation. It is CLEAN, PURE and of highest food value.

Lethbridge retail business during 1930 was $8,500,000.

There is a belief that the Conference bargains strike a worse blow to American farmers than American manufacturers.

The A.P. grain elevator at Craigmyle containing 30,000 bushels of wheat, was destroyed by fire on Friday of last week. A new elevator will be rebuilt at once.

An Oklahoma girl advertised for a husband, and landed one within a very short time. The advertisement cost $3. She paid the wedding expenses, $9. In less than a year the husband died, says the Athol Globe and left his widow an $11,000 insurance policy. Now will you admit that it pays to advertise?—Hanover Post.

Few of us these days have much to boast of. Rather should we emphasize the quality of thankfulness, best illustrated in the story of the poor old lady who attended the Thanksgiving meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society. Each member present was expected to get and state one thing for which she must be thankful. The poor soul got up and stated that she hadn't much to give thanks for but if there was one thing it was that as she had only two teeth in her mouth, she did thank the Lord that they were exactly opposite.—Wiarion Echo.

Mr. Weir, Minister of Agriculture, told the people of South Huron that in its first 18 months of office the Bennett government put $36,000,000 into the pockets of the farmers. Search your pockets, farmers: it must be there, says the Winnipeg Free Press.

The Acton Free Press suggests that all the vigorous protests that are being made against municipal spending constitute a smoke screen to cover up the enormous amounts that are being handed out by governments higher up. Quite possibly the guess of the Free Press is correct.

Word was received in town several days ago of the severe illness of Mrs. Harlow (Rusty) Allen, at her sister's home in Detroit, Michigan. Her husband left immediately for Detroit but since his arrival there, no word has been received from him. Mrs. Allen's many friends all hope, that "no news is good news."

With the hunting season on, there are in Milo a number of hunters. The birds however, must be extremely "flighty" this year as we see few or no birds brought in. Mr. Ern Culley and Mr. Howard Nelson, did, however, bring down six geese in one morning's hunt at the very first of the season. We hope their good luck returns.

Milo Tennis Members Hold Treasure Hunt

A treasure hunt sponsored by the Tennis Club was held last Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Nelson. The hunt being an entirely new and different feature, proved to be most enjoyable. Beginning at the Nelson residence groups of guests were each given clues. These clues led to more clues and cars were very busy dashing around to see who could get their clue first. The major portion of the hunting took place in the municipal park. The treasure, a box of chocolates, was finally located back in the yard from which the crowd started, by Mr. Jack Wood. The crowd then assembled in the house where a dumbell-spelling match was held. At the conclusion of this, brown buns, beans and coffee were served by the girls of the club.

"Oh, what a funny looking cow!" said the chic young thing from New York. "Why hasn't it any horns?"

"There are many reasons," answered the farmer, "why a cow does not have horns. Some are born without horns and do not have any until the latter years of their life. Others are dehorned, while still other breeds are not supposed to have horns at all. There are many reasons why a cow sometimes does not have horns. But the chief reason, is that this isn't a cow at all. It's a horse."—Kincardine Review.
